

Episode 3 – Vikki video diary Transcript

Today's meeting went really badly: I had an argument with Shireen, I completely snapped at her – it's so unlike me, but I dunno why I let her get to me like that. Delia had a really good idea about planning the presentation before we wrote the content, but that should have been my idea. I dunno why I didn't think of it. I think it's because I got into this argument about PowerPoint. I know I'm outnumbered on this, but PowerPoint is so dull: we should do a role play, because it'd just give us the opportunity to bring out our learning experience and show the audience what we mean, rather than just talking about it. But the others just won't listen to my ideas on that so...Muzz suggested that we bring some experience next week, so maybe when we have the examples and act them out the others might agree that role play is the best way to do it, but I'm not getting into an argument about it again.
