

Rob – Episode 1 video diary
Transcript

You've asked me to talk about first impressions in the group, and whether you think my first impression will change of anyone in the group as the project progresses. It's an interesting idea, but I can't see it working. I mean, first impressions are usually right; mine don't usually change.

I've done a bit of psychology at high school, so I know a bit about this. Apparently, when you go for an interview, the interviewer's already made his mind up about you as soon as you step foot in the door. You haven't even had chance to open your mouth, so what's the point of that? They might as well just line everyone up outside and pick the person they think looks right for the job.

You see. I don't think people can make their mind up that fast, but I make my mind up pretty quickly about people and I stick to it.

You want me to name names? Shireen. She's really gobby; really bossy and annoying. She's always got her mouth open, always telling someone to do something. She's getting on everyone's nerves. Especially Vikki; Vikki's cool now, but I can see if Shireen just pecks at her head, Vikki's gonna explode in her face.

Delia hasn't said much yet; I think she's just bored. She looks bored. She just sits there with her bored body language, twiddling her hair and biting her nails. She might just be shy.

I don't really know what to say about Muzz. He's really doing my head in. I know it's not his fault because he can't speak the language properly, but if we keep having to explain everything to him twice, we're never gonna get anywhere.

Me?? They probably think I'm a right pain! Did you see Shireen's face when I left?! Ah, they'll learn to love me.
